C. OF C. WEEK

Tomorrow morning the Richmond Chamber of Commerce week will be opened. The spirit has been prevalent on the streets for several days and it is a spirit that speaks for the success of the community.

A slogan contest is one of the first things that has been arranged for the week. Richmond is in need of a good slogan and this contest will provide one. Once one is found that is suitable it should be used by every business man and citizen on every opportunity.

The only regrettable thing is that Chamber of Commerce week can't last forever. A few months of good hard boosting, such as will take place during the next six days would make this city grow in such a way that it would not be recognized in the period of a few months.
Continual hammering however is essential, and the week will not accomplish a great deal unless those things which are started during the week are consistently followed out.

One of the greatest hinder-ances to any city is the lack of knowledge of the residents of the city to their own advantages and possibilities.
Richmond has many natural advantages that have not as yet been scratched. Owners of large industrial plants are interested in sites such as the Richmond waterfront has to offer. However, a sound foundation must first be built in every other department of the city. These are the things that will attract the manufacturer.

Extensive plans have been laid out for the week. The local service clubs have arranged appropriate programs for their weekly luncheon meetings. Signs will be distributed tomorrow to all of the business houses of the city.

Everything and everybody points to a successful week of boosting. Let's all get in and do our share.

Statements from the various directors and committeemen of the Chamber of Commerce are distributed throughout this edition of the RECORD-HER-ALD. They are well worth reading to understand what your fellow citizens think of the Chamber and the plans for this week.

Marian Andrew Hays

Budwer Lytton is supposed to have said:
"In the bright lexicon of youth that fate reserves for bright men-hood, there is no such word as fail."

That beautiful saying could be well applied to no less a person than M. A. Hays the man who has given Richmond an exclusive residential section that many real estate men in the east bay region have watched with jaundiced eye.
Hays was born in Indiana and worked as a boy on his father's farm. He came to Richmond in 1901 and went to work for the Santa Fe Railroad later becoming coach foreman with a number of men working under him.

In 1912 Hays realizing that Richmond was growing rapidly went to work as a salesman selling real estate and later opened his own office at 23rd and Macdonald avenue. Since then Hays has grown into a general broker with several offices and some of the largest tracts belong to his company. He predicted a number of years ago that Twenty-third street would eventually be the center of Richmond.

Hays is a director of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce; active in the Elks lodge and is an around good fellow with many friends. His hobby is Mira Vista, called the Piedmont of Richmond.
When he finds time away from business golf is his diversion.

El Cerrito Community Methodist Episcopal Church Which Will Be Dedicated Today

The New Edifice of the Community Methodist Episcopal church which will be dedicated today with appropriate ceremonies. The new church a fulfillment of a dream of fifteen years is located at Stockton and Everett streets, El Cerrito. Dr. W. S. Matthew is the pastor of the church.

Simple dedication services will open the new El Cerrito Community Methodist Episcopal church today at Stockton and Everett streets, El Cerrito.

The new church is the fulfillment of the ideals that was set by the founders 15 years ago.

The history of the church is like the history of a rapidly growing community.

Fifteen years ago Dr. A. J.
Hanson started the foundation, a community Sunday school at Richmond avenue. Dr. Hanson secured the first lots.

At the time, Dr. W. S. Matthew was pastor of the Trinity Methodist church at Oakland.

Dr. Hanson came to Dr. Matthew and asked him if he could recommend several people to take charge and teach the Sunday school at the church. Three people volunteered; one, a University of California student; Mrs. S.

Hansly and Mrs. Lucinda Morse.

Miss Morse has stayed with the church for seven years. At the time of the ground breaking for the present church she was invited to turn the first sod.

The little church progressed, but it continued to be little more than a Sunday school mission for the Eastbay regions. A. Dr. Gibbs of Oakland was pastor and in charge of the work.

A year and a half ago, Dr.
Matthew was requested to come to El Cerrito and preach on Sunday mornings, but he soon found that services in the evening as well as the morning, would be necessary.

Superintendent French McDonald, now reports that the Sunday school has more than double its enrollment. The school has recently been organized into the junior and primary divisions which meet in the basement of the church, Miss Gertrude Mitchell is in charge of both divisions.

Recently M. E. Leaves, a veteran choir leader has taken charge of the choir and has charge of the music. Leaves has brought together a promising choir. He is in charge of the dedication music today.

"It is only fair to state," Dr.
Matthew said, "that the city church extension society of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley, has helped the church to a great extent.

The extension society has purchased the lots on which the church now stands and has contributed $1,000 to the building fund. The old property was sold for $1,000 net. The property of the church is now worth at least $10,000.

There is still room on the lots for a bigger church and room on the south side for a parsonage if needed.

To give a general idea of the growth of the church, Dr. Matthew declared that the membership has doubled that of last year.

The church trustees are:
French McDonald, F. J. Bradley, Winifred Renfree, Mrs. Cora J. M.
Simonson and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Those who were in charge of the new building were: French McDonald, chairman of the building committee; Mrs. J. W. Schoute chairman of finance committee and Mrs. Cora J. M. Simonson, treasurer of building fund.

Young Mother Is Accused Of Poisoning An Entire Family

Husband and Three Children Are Believed to Have Been Given Arsenic

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 20.—

"Mother spread some white powder on a piece of toast and told me to eat it with my soup. Right after that I started to vomit blood."

A five year old boy, Verdia Bussey, from a hospital bed weakly stammered this strange story here tonight and by so doing fastened upon Mrs. Bennett Bussey three murder charges.

The boy is believed to be breathing his last from arsenic poisoning so that a fourth horrible crime may be charged against her.

The young mother aged 23 is held.

Late this afternoon parish officials gave orders for the exhumation of the bodies of:

Lawrence Bussey, 28, the woman's husband who died from mysterious causes April 3, 1925.

Clarence Bussey age 3 who died December 5, 1925.

Ester Bussey who died January 1, 1926.

First suspicions of the crimes of which the mother is suspected came when the strange condition of the child was noted by physicians of Charity Hospital. Throat cures taken showed traces of arsenic poisoning.

MANY TAKING PART IN THE C. C. CONTEST

According to A. L. Paulsen, of the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce, slogans for the booster week contest are pouring into his office at the California theatre building.

The prizes offered for the big booster slogan is a grand prize of $25 and four prizes of $5 each. Two will be given for the best slogan presented by a high school boy and girl and two will be given to the best slogans turned in by a grammar school boy and girl.

The slogan must be short and descriptive. It must be suitable for letters, literature, etc., that the chamber sends out.

The judges of the contest which closes on noon of Friday, February 26, are D. J. Hall, G. L.
Downing, Fred Caudie, L. Garfinkle and Aubrey Wilson.

The winning contestants and the slogan chosen will be announced from the stage of the California theatre.

Golett Defendant Pleads Guilty

Charged with violation of the state corporate securities act, C.
E. Peacock, one of the four defendants in the Golett oil windle case in Oakland, pled guilty before Judge Fred V. Wood yesterday. He will be sentenced on Tuesday.

Peacock was represented by Attorneys Pierce and Carlson of Richmond. Together with Mr. and Mrs. E. Reeves and Frank Davis, Peacock was tried last fall for grand larceny and the jury disagreed. The new trial was halted by the illness of Reeves and later by the wounding of Attorney Pierce of Richmond by an unknown gunman.

"PUP TENT" IS PLANNED HERE

Plans are being made by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for the formation of a Pup Tent of the Military order of G. O. C. The plans were discussed at the council meeting which was held at Martinez on Friday night. Applications are being made out for a charter and the V. F. W. posts through out the county are invited to join.

PLANS FOR C. C. BOOSTER WEEK ANNOUNCED BY P. M. SANFORD

President of Chamber Urges All To Take Part in Week Boosting This City

By P. M. SANFORD,
President Richmond Chamber of Commerce

In announcing Chamber of Commerce Week, February 22-26 I do so with high hope that something will be said or done that will cause an increased interest on the part of all of our people in the life and welfare of the city of Richmond.

The board of directors and the committeemen of the chamber are going to present to you through the columns of the newspapers and from the public platform the plans of activity for the year 1926.

I am sure that this information will be presented in a manner that will gain city-wide interest and will so challenge each and every one of us that we will give of our very best to the carrying out of such plans.

There is not going to be any

P. M. SANFORD

strenuous campaign on the part of the chamber to add to its present membership, but I am certain that, through the source of information that will be given, no one interested in the development of Richmond will want to withhold their very best support from the chamber.

We are going to prove to you that your business and your investments in property and home find their increase and are made more secure because of the fact that there is a wide awake organization in our community with the one fundamental purpose in view of fostering its business life.

The chamber of commerce is the recognized spokesman of the community. We get our rating as a city to a large degree by the pulse of the chamber. If that organization is alive and alert, so is the city known. If it is inactive and dead—so is the city appraised.

We as a people have just reason to be proud of our city and we have every reason to believe in its future development. Let's all be of one mind in doing our very best in 1926 to bring prosperity and happiness to our present age.

Mexican Note Is Thought To Pave Way To End Dispute

Message Held in Confidence Is Believed of Conciliatory Nature

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Convinced that differences between the two governments will be amicably adjusted, state department officials today began the study of the Mexican reply to the latest American note protesting against the Mexican petroleum and Allen land laws.

The Mexican reply was received this morning by mail from James R. Sheffield, American Ambassador at Mexico city.

Although its contents are held in the strictest confidence, it is understood to be conciliatory in tone and to leave the way open for further exchanges looking toward a settlement of the points of difference between the two capitals.

American officials are disin-clined to regard relations between the two governments as in any way critical. Despite recurring reports of irreconcilable differences, threatening serious eventualities, the prevailing opinion here is that the situation is not a difficult one as international problems go.

Dispatches from Mexico city tending to emphasize the critical state of relations are regarded here as overdrawn.

Local Shriners Are Present At Oakland Dinner

About 2000 members of the Mystic Shrine were present at the dinner and entertainment that was staged at the Ahmiah Temple of Oakland last night at the Oakland Auditorium.

About 35 members of Richmond were present. They were headed by Clare D. Horner.

They reported that boxing maches were held and high class acts of vaudeville was presented.

Scots Planning Big Party Here

At a meeting held by the Scots on Friday night Richmond Pyramid No. 42 plans were completed for a ceremonial to be held here on April 17.

Delegates to the affair will be sent by pyramids from all over California. Topah George Bengely will preside at the ceremonies which will consist mainly of the initiation of candidates.

The Roosevelt Auditorium has been tentatively selected for the scenes of the ceremonial. It is expected that about 2500 Scots will attend.

ARRESTED FOR CARRYING GUN

Charged with carrying a concealed weapon, Florencio Dominguez was lodged in the city jail last night. An officer noted a suspicious bulge in Dominguez's pocket and upon investigating found that he was carrying a large sized automatic.

GAS!

According to figures compiled by American Legion officials there were in the World War 72,552 casualties from gas in the American army. Two hundred of these men died on the field of battle and 1,221 of them died in hospitals, a mortality of 2 per cent.

There were 197,686 casualties from other weapons than gas. Of this number 46,519, or 24 per cent, died.

Of blinding casualties 754 men suffered loss of sight of one or both eyes. Gas was responsible for 29 cases, or 3.8 per cent, other weapons accounting for 725 cases, or 96.2 per cent.

There are one and one-half times as many cases of tuberculosis per thousand occurring among soldiers who were gassed in France as there were among those not gassed.

AN ADVENTURER FIGHTS FOR ENGLAND

Very late in the seventeenth century France and England engaged in what is known as King William's War.

Of course the colonies felt it, as they always felt any disturbance in the mother country. Feeling was bitter between the French and the English colonists, and they had been on the verge of outbreak for some time.

Sir William Phipps set out from the English colonies for an expedition against Acadia, which was a French holding. Sir William was an adventurer and there is the story that at one time he had found a Spanish treasure ship fast on the reef in Hispaniola. On this expedition he evidently couldn't forget his pirate tactics. He took Port Royal from the French and carried away everything that could be loaded on board ship. That doesn't sound much like formal warfare, does it?

That same year he led another army against Quebec, but this time he wasn't so successful. He didn't have a chance to sack the city and carry off any treasure. He was fortunate, perhaps, to come off with his life.

You see, war had brought unity to the British colonies. Here was a common undertaking for them. They firmly believed that the governor of the French colonies had been instructed to wipe the English colonies out of existence.

So Massachusetts, Plymouth and Connecticut had a meeting. They agreed on the conquest of New France. They laid out plans and the set about planning campaigns.

Since Sir William had been so successful in Acadia a short time before, he was considered an 'ace' in the fighting game. They determined to send him by sea to Quebec. At the same time they would send a force by land to Montreal.

Perhaps they thought that by striking both cities at the same time, one could not help the other. That would divide their strength. But it didn't work out that way at all. The force that was to go by land to Montreal never even got there. And the force under Sir William was whipped. The plans for the campaign had been excellent. But they failed in carrying them out.

However, the mere fact that the colonies were acting in unison was something. For we are getting nearer to the time when they were all to join together against England and declared themselves free.

MODES FOR MADEMOISELLE

The costume blouse is an important item of the mode, since it is almost a dress in itself. It can be worn with a slip of crepe de Chine, satin or velvet, making a very handsome ensemble. The model pictured to the left is developed in crepe de Chine, and the skirt is of the same material. It is tucked at the shoulders and slashed at one side. If preferred, the sleeves may be extended to wrist-length. Medium size requires 3/4 yard 36-inch satin.

Dainty and youthful is the model to the right, fashioned of crepe de Chine. The model also looks chic in taffeta or it may be developed in chiffon velvet, using satin for the frills on the sleeves and at the lower edge of the skirt. Medium size requires 4 yards 36-inch crepe de Chine.

First Model: Pictorial Review Blouse No. 2547. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 46 inches bust. Price, 30 cents. Skirt No. 2548. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 48 inches bust. Price, 30 cents.

Second Model: Dress No. 2556. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 46 inches bust. Price, 45 cents.

FOR BUSINESS WEAR

Very smart and yet serviceable is this jumper skirt of striped cashmere. It has a square opening in front and large armholes. With it is worn a crepe de Chine blouse with jacket at the front, round collar and long sleeves. Turn-back cuffs finish the sleeves. On either side of the skirt in front are inverted plaits to give the hidden fullness now so fashionable. Medium size requires 1 1/2 yard 54-inch cashmere and 1 1/2 yard 36-inch crepe.

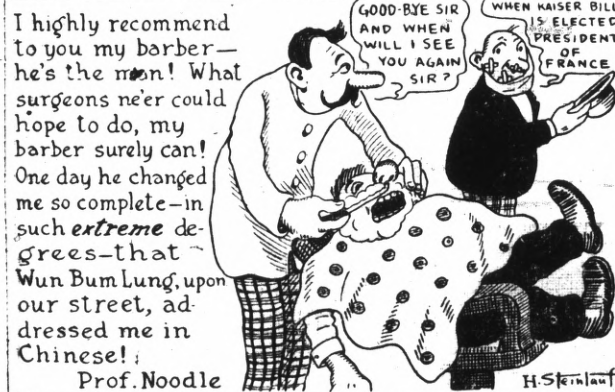

Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 2664. Sizes, 14 to 20 years and 34 to 46 inches bust. Price, 35 cents. Blouse No. 2139. Sizes, 34 to 48 inches bust. Price, 30 cents.

The GOLDEN COCOON

SYNOPSIS

Gregory Cochran, lawyer and political leader, is sheltering in his mother's home Molly Shannon, university student, whom he rescued from the river, when, wandering aimlessly at night, she plunged in. Molly had become despondent when deserted by her fiancé, Stephen Renfro, efficiency expert, who married the daughter of "rich old Jim Dillworth." Cochran, proving a true friend, is gradually winning Molly's confidence and she is relating her sorrows to him.

She was magnificent indeed. She was faultless, consummate—in every detail from the exquisite waves of silver drawn from brow to ears, the web of creamy old lace at throat and wrists, to the hem of her lustrous black silk. Her magnificence consisted, though, not in her clothes; neither in her coiffure nor in the perfection of her grooming. Molly saw that at once, even while she shivered into nothingness in comparison. No, she was innately and predestinedly magnificent. It was in the very way she stood on the threshold—the quintessence of poise, the last word in presence. One had not far to seek where her source lay in the sureness of motion, his "serene as a god above a storm."

To the latter she addressed herself, without noting, apparently, that there was anyone else in the room. "Gregory, the telephone is really getting too much for me."

Mrs. Parker knew nothing of what had taken place after Molly left her house to the August evening save what Cochran saw fit to tell her of an "accident" in the street. He did not mince words particularly as to her own remissness in letting the girl go out alone—under the circumstances. This weighed but lightly, however, on Mrs. Parker's ricocheting spirits. Assured that her protégée was in no serious danger—though she could not be moved for some weeks—her classically hopeful old mind leaped at once to the gratifying conclusion that the "hand of the Lord" was in it. Before Gregory Cochran's broad and well-tailored back was fairly turned on the boarding house he was a marked man.

As months passed and Cochran's kindly oversight of Molly's fate showed no signs of falling off, elation waxed to such a triumphant intensity that she could not refrain from some hint of her prophetic imaginings—with the hope, no doubt, of having them confirmed. "Just wait till Stephen Renfro sees you in the Governor's mansion!" she exclaimed openly one day, when Molly had dropped in for a little kitchen visit. The visits were briefer and farther apart of late. They seemed not to have so much to talk about. "I reckon that'll make him sit up and take notice!"

Molly looked at her for some moments in blank and unlighted silence. Her mind groped vainly for any intelligible point of contact she had, of course, heard Gregory Cochran named in connection with the governorship, but no relation between that fact and herself had ever occurred to her. It did not occur to her now.

"Please," she concluded earnestly, "you must not only never say such a thing again; you mustn't even think of it. I'm no more to him than a half-drowned kitten he's pulled out of a slimy pond and warmed back to life. He's as impersonal as—God."

Mrs. Parker shook her head, fondly unconvinced, but she agreed straightway to keep her own counsel, and Molly passed on to the business which had brought her over. She had saved fifteen dollars toward repaying the money she owed. "I wish it were the whole seventy-five," she said, opening her handbag and taking out the bills. "I know how much you need it."

The other pushed the money back across the table, with floury hands, rumbling absently that she was not to bother her head about it. Far removed from such gross and early matters, she was rapidly envisaging Molly in a trailing velvet gown, hair done high, and jewels at her throat, holding grand levee in the Governor's mansion. "You don't owe it to me, now," she added, still from the depths of her trance.

Molly stared. "What do you mean—I don't owe it to you?" she demanded.

The fairy godmother reared back from the Governor's ball, minus her coach and four, and arrived somewhat panicky and out of breath. "Why," she stammered, "I wasn't thinkin'."

"If I don't owe it to you," Molly persisted, not taking her eyes for an instant off the scared old face, "to whom do I owe it?"

"Oh, shucks! I wasn't payin' any attention to what I was sayin'." Mrs. Parker pooh-poohed manfully. "Of course you owe it to."

"To whom do I owe it?" Molly repeated, her voice chilling with the certainty of the truth.

THE RICHMOND

Frances Howard, who made her motion picture debut in "The Swan," has her second picture engagement in a featured role in support of Richard Dix in his new Paramount starring picture, "Too Many Kisses," which will be the feature at the Richmond theatre today only.

"Too Many Kisses" was directed by Paul Sloane, who made "A Man Must Live," Gerald Durrey adapted the story for the screen from the Cosmopolitan Magazine serial, "A Maker of Gestures," by John Monk Saunders.

The star plays the role of a fickle young American whose many love affairs result in countless breach of promise suits. His exasperated father ships him to the Basque country in the Perceps to get him away from girls, only to have him fall in love with a dark eyed senorita, Yvonne, played by Miss Howard. All of Gaylord, Sr.'s carefully laid plans go up in smoke.

Other big names in the cast are Joe Burke, Albert Tavener, Alice Mills, Arthur Ludwig and Paul Penzer, the last two henchmen of Powell in the production. They carry Dix off to a mountain hut, while Powell goes about kidnapping Miss Howard.

Other features on the same program include "Oh Teacher," a roaring comedy, "Kinograms," current news events.

Coming next Wednesday and Thursday, Erich Von Stroheim's production "Greedy."

Business grows according to the way that the business is conducted and advertised. The same can be said of cities. This Chamber of Commerce week is a good plan to acquaint the citizens of Richmond with what they have and what they can accomplish if they will only half try.

The development of Richmond will largely depend upon the activities of the Chamber of Commerce, and only through that channel can we ever expect to make Richmond a great industrial city.

The Sunday school begins promptly at 9 a. m. The subject of the lesson story for all departments except the primary will be "Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane." Beginning with the first Sunday in Lent the lesson stories will portray the Saviour in His suffering and death for the redemption of a sin-cursed world. The story of Jesus' intense agony in the Garden of Pain contains a number of lessons, applicable to the lives of our little ones. Let the Sunday school help acquaint your child with the story of the Cross!

The early service will begin promptly at 10 a. m.

Public worship begins at 11 a. m. The first of a series of Lenten sermons to be delivered by the pastor will have for its theme: "A Few Hours to Live." Of the vocal and instrumental members which will help to beautify all of the Lenten service, the offering tomorrow will be a Lenten choral to be sung by the Chapel Ladies' Quartet, consisting of Mrs. A. Schang, Mrs. H. Graves, Miss P. Ochsner and Miss D. Jacobsen. The service of Holy Baptism will be administered during this service.

Holy Communion will be observed in both services.

Charles Cooper, owner of the fastest paid riders in the league, balked on the Oak St. terms. It was admitted by officials of the team. Each riding Cooper held out on the salary question but this spring may be the rider as the Oaks have shown a good riding record and various while Cooper has the weakest batting average of the whole team.

VAN RYEN IN MATCH
NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Only one American is left in the national amateur tennis championship matches today. He is John Van Ryn, of New York University. Although Van Ryn is little known in the world of tennis there is a ghost of a chance that he may come through with a win. Bill Tilden, Althea and Hunter were eliminated the other day by the French stars.

RECORDS ARE SMASHED AT AUTO SHOWS

By ROY G. HAYES
Universal Service Automobile Editor
DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20.—Opinion is unanimous in automobile manufacturing circles here that this spring will be the greatest that the motor car industry has ever known. First evidences of this were noted at the automobile shows in the unexampled interest in automobiles. No figures are available on total sales made at any of the major shows but reports from several of the leading manufacturers indicate that they have shattered all records for show business.

Seven or a dozen reasons are presented in support of the forecast that America's greatest industry is entering upon its greatest season. Some of these are:

1. The general prosperity of the country, which right now surpasses the corresponding period of any previous year; savings deposits are $2,000,000,000 greater than last year and labor is fully employed.

2. The tremendous increase in highway construction and the road building program for this year, which surpasses that of any previous year, enabling the car owner to get more ability out of his automobile.

3. Prices generally are lower than ever; recent reductions have made the advantages of automobile ownership available to thousands; hitherto denied the privilege; it is a generally recognized fact that the 1926 automobile offers more dollar-for-dollar value than the car of any preceding year.

4. The two-car-to-a-family trend is being felt as is evidenced in the unprecedented interest and buying of roadsters this year to be used as companion cars to larger closed models.

5. Projected lifting of the Federal tax on autos as well as lowered insurance rates.

6. An expected increase of 100 percent in foreign trade, which should increase America's annual foreign automobile deliveries from 550,000 last year to more than one million in 1926.

7. Extended time payment plans, which will enable many who would otherwise be denied them to enjoy the advantages of an automobile. Of the many other reasons for the belief that the industry is entering the greatest season is the constantly ever widening appeal of the automobile and the desire of the average motorist to drive a better car.

In preparation for this gigantic order, factory wheels are turning at record speeds. Officials are fully mindful of the damaging effects that resulted from overproduction in years past and as a result present production plans are being tempered with caution that promises for continued soundness of operations of an even larger scale.

The age of star performers at the moment is Dodge Brothers. The great hamtramck organization last week reached a daily output of 1,500 vehicles. This exceeds by nearly 300 cars the best previous performance of the company officials said that it will be further increased.

This feat has been made possible by the recent completion of a $10,000,000 expansion program, including several new buildings. Officials report that the demand is the greatest in the history of the company. At the present rate of production on the Dodge car is turned out of the factory here every 46 seconds.

Automobile men here are of the opinion that the recent Ford price cut ranging from $20 to $30, on closed cars will have the effect of breaking up any tendency toward higher prices.

Ford closed cars are now selling at the lowest point in the history of the company.

The following table shows the swings in Ford prices including the reduction just announced:

Current	1920	War High	1917
Price	price	price	price
Tour. $310	440	575	360
load. $290	395	550	345
Sedan $565	795	975	645

HOLLYWOOD IS WEARING LONG SKIRTS AGAIN

(By Universal Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 20.—Pay the poor ladies for next season will be one of a shortage on eye strain. Reason: Long skirts. For the past seven years the skirt question has been playing a merry see-saw. Up, down, low without a stop. This set-on knees can be viewed anywhere, anytime. But next season, Paris or no Paris, knees will but out of sight.

No more cariers, no more knees, no more glimpses of what notes—the short skirt is doomed.

Hollywood has revolted against the Paris decree that skirts would go still higher. It has reversed the process, as witness, the actresses who attended the recent Vampus soiree. Daurancea, dauntiness, daughtfulness, were evidenced in a majority of long skirts, both clinging and hooped.

When Mrs. John B. Henderson of Washington, D. C., began her campaign against short skirts some time ago, Mary Astor was with her heart and soul. The actress was one of those who appeared at the Vampus in a skirt that reached almost to the shoe. A feature of her gown was a great waist-line—in the proper place.

"I am glad," said Colleen Moore, First National star, "that the voice of Parisian style dictators has been thrown off. Mayhap next year will also see a return of the portulante that they used to wear."

Norma and Constance Talmadge agreed for once. You know how sisters are. They hate to agree on any points, but on short skirts they agreed—thumbs down.

Blanche Sweet has been one of those who never followed fashion. For the past few weeks she has been ahead of the mode with long dresses.

"It is not a matter of simply covering the limbs," said Miss Sweet. "Long gowns look better on most women than short. It is only the very young girl who can truthfully believe herself good looking in a short skirt."

Another actress who heartily endorses the long skirt decision is Dolores Del Rio, Mexican star, who was a leader of fashion in Mexico City before she entered pictures.

"Mexican dresses have always been long," she said. "We did not accept the short skirt at all. So I often felt out of place with my flowing gowns. But no longer."

Hosts of others add their opinions, and four of the most noted costume designers of the Hollywood studios declare the long skirt has returned.

"In all my advance models I am using the long skirt," said Claire West. "It is not only a safer fashion; it is more becoming to most women. Among motion picture actresses I find few hard to fit, and the long skirt suits them all."

Cora McGeachy said: "Most women look better in a long skirt. Illusions of beautiful lines easily can be created by means of the long skirt, either clinging or hooped, according to the individuality of the wearer. This is true of afternoon gowns as well as of sportswear, of course, will remain short, but not as short."

LENT QUIETLY OBSERVED BY WASHINGTON

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Capital ladies who through inclination or necessity spend their days and nights in the mad, mad social whirl, flitting from one party to another, will have a chance now to catch up on their sleep, also their darning.

Lent is here.

And Lent brings a decided let-up in the activities of fashionable Washington, though not a complete cessation. But the way a hymn book replaces a calling case is quite noticeable.

There was one glorious, glamorous end to the pre-Lent season Tuesday night, gathering into a single evening all the jollity that normally would be scattered over the coming forty days.

It was the Mardi Gras ball at the Mayflower. Most everybody who is anybody in society was there, of course, it reflected the glories of the New Orleans Festival with a king and queen and royal court and all.

After that, it is the thing to go to church more than usual. A number of masses of worship have arranged afternoon services in anticipation of a need. And those entertainments planned are more than apt to be lectures and musicles worthy of any cleric's approval.

The White House vast reception rooms will be vacant during the penitential season. Save for the ghosts of former state functions safely in the past, the first lady has planned no more formal affairs until perhaps time for a renewal of the charming garden parties that have graced their Springs.

During the Taft, Wilson, and Harding administration, Lent was sprinkled, white house-y speaking, with a number of sacred music recitals. But Mrs. Coolidge last year dispensed with this precedent except for the visit of the renowned Rachmaninoff. Her mourning for the young son of the house may have had something to do with that.

The ladies of the cabinet will not be "at home" any more until after Easter, it is announced. Their withdrawing for the season into the circle of their own families breaks a comfortable custom but recently established.

Heretofore, the cabinet wives held two or three dress-up receptions during the Congressional period, but lately they have substituted interesting fire-side "at homes" on Wednesdays, which have offered opportunity for really intimate friendships to develop.

If the cabinet ladies are "doing penance" by staying in nights, as it were, the schedule of dinners given by cabinet officers to the chief executive and his wife has undergone no change.

Goodness me! If the weekly routine of these affairs were interrupted, there'd not be an end of them until away into the hot weather. So the secretary of war, and Mrs. Davis gave their presidential dinner this week, just as if Wednesday were not Ash Wednesday.

A touch of gloom will soon spread over the lush of the Lenten season, for the Bibescos are going home to stay. And their departure leaves the Rumanian legation without those delightful people who have made it the mecca for diplomats for the past few years.

The counselor of the legation and Mme. Nano are going back to Bucharest, lingering here only long enough to meet Radu Djuvara, the new charge d'affaires, who will be temporary head of the legation. Mme. Nano is reputed to be the most beautiful woman in the present diplomatic set.

And the blow that will break many of Dobble's heart is the coming leave-taking of the delightful attaché, Dimitri Dimanescu—young, good-looking, intellectual, and a bachelor. He has long been a capital beau.

The Bibescos will go first to Paris and then to their estate in the foothills of the Carpathians, where the prince will devote the coming months to writing. He will not accept another diplomatic post at this time.

Perhaps the one person in Washington who will most miss the Bibescos is the wife of the speaker of the house, "Princess" Alice and Princess Elizabeth, the one a bit of American aristocracy and the other a representative of the British nobility are great friends.

Endowed with much the same intellectual equipment and political insight, they were often together, notably in those hot days of the late Democratic convention. And the homes of both were dis-

Greater Consumption of Milk Is Urged by Health Commissioner Who States It Is the Best Food

(Contributed by Dr. C. R. Blake, Commissioner of Health, Richmond, California)

In the conservation of the public health, there is perhaps no phase of activity more important than safe-guarding our milk supply. Milk is more extensively used than any other food-stuff and forms a portion of the food of almost every person practically every day of the year. Containing as it does, all the essentials of a perfect ration, it forms the principal article of diet for the infant, the sick and convalescent, who are less able to resist the harmful effects of milk should it be adulterated or contaminated with disease-producing organisms.

The impression is undoubtedly general among people that clean milk, which does not readily sour, and which contains a goodly column of cream when delivered in the bottle, is safe milk. From a public health viewpoint, however, milk must not alone be clean, but it must measure up to certain nutritional requirements and be free from bacteria capable of producing disease.

That milk may play a part in the spread of certain diseases, either of human or bovine origin, has for many years been appreciated and various statistics of this and many other cities show that epidemics of contagious diseases have been definitely traced to infected milk.

There is no other food industry the demands of which are so numerous and exacting as that of producing and marketing wholesome, clean, safe milk. When considering the numerous agencies and influences which may cause milk to deviate from the normal on its way from the cow to the consumer, it is manifest that our best efforts are challenged in the control of this essential food.

As in the initial and general speaking, the greatest contamination of milk occurs upon the farm, the importance of strict supervision at the source of production is apparent. Inspectors visit the various dairies and a detailed report of the sanitary condition of each farm is made. If the conditions do not meet the requirements of the department, the dairymen is notified of the changes or improvements deemed necessary and a time limit is set in which to comply. At the expiration of the time allowed, a reinspection is made and if, in the opinion of the inspector, sufficient improvement has not been made he considers the conditions make the farm unfit for the production of a wholesome milk, the dairymen and the city dealer, whom he supplies are notified that milk from the dairy is barred from the city.

When the milk is delivered to the city dealer, samples are taken for inspection. Aside from making chemical, bacterial and temperature tests of such milk, we have employed for many years what is known as the "sediment test." This consists of straining one pint of milk as delivered by the dairymen through a cotton bag, set one inch in diameter. The sediment in milk which has not been produced in a cleanly manner will remain on the cotton disc and the particles of dirt can be seen by the dairymen. This manner of examining milk is simple and has produced good results.

Regular and frequent inspection is made of all places selling milk and samples of milk taken from the wagon delivering milk to the customers.

The issuance of licenses to all persons who sell milk in the city is an effective method of securing control over the industry particularly of the provision in the ordinance which provides for revocation of the license on failure to comply with the department regulations.

The policy of our department has been to educate the dealer so that he may understand the necessity of using methods which will enable him to market a pure and wholesome product. He is given to understand that the spread of a contagious disease through his milk supply, utensils or drivers will at once put him out of the milk business and that proper precautions are the best insurance against such an occurrence.

While we are mindful that in milk control, supervision must be maintained along the entire route from cow to consumer, nevertheless, it must be borne in mind that inspection has its limitations and cannot be relied upon with certainty to insure its safety in milk. Because diseases are not promptly or even not reported among people who handle and prepare the milk supply, great reliance is placed upon the treatment of milk by a method known as pasteurization.

To correct any erroneous ideas, it must be clearly understood that pasteurization does not consist of boiling or chemically treating milk and that it does not impair its nutritive value. Pasteurization as applied to milk consists of heating the milk to and holding it at the temperature of 145 degrees for a period of not less than 30 minutes. Following the heating, it is essential that the milk be promptly cooled, to a temperature of 40 degrees or less, be put in properly sterilized bottles and kept at a low temperature until consumed. It is now recognized that the modern methods of pasteurization do not cause any appreciable change in the food value or digestibility of the milk.

Pasteurization is not and never was intended as a corrective for lax or insanitary methods. Pasteurization has its use in the destruction of any disease-producing bacteria which have gained entrance to the milk in the course of handling. Present knowledge of the principles of nutrition shows that any measure which tends to improve the nutrition and thus maintain the resistance of the individual to all kinds of infection is a public health duty. While the first obligation of a health official to his community is to see that the milk is safe and wholesome, it is also his duty to urge the increased consumption of milk since this food contains the essential life-giving elements in proper proportions and in a form easily assimilated. Health authorities, the majority of them, believe that one quart of milk should be consumed daily not only by each growing child but by each adult as well. In order that they may maintain the proper health equilibrium and build up resistance against disease.

If milk were put up in bottles of attractive shape and appearance, if it were given a fanciful name and announced for what it really is "the greatest body builder and health restorative in the world," people would flock to buy it at fancy prices. But because it costs so little and is delivered every morning at the doorsteps, one seldom gives its virtues a thought.

Appropriate suggestions regarding the home care of milk are:

Provide a covered box into which the milk man may place your milk as a protection against flies and dirt.

Remove the bottle from this temporary place to the cooler or Anyone with thought for the future development of the Pacific Coast in mind cannot help but realize that with earnest endeavor on the part of the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens of Richmond that we shall within a few years see our city grow to a population of at least 50,000.

We are growing faster, I think than most citizens realize. The records of the Postoffice which I am somewhat familiar, are the best indication of our advancement. It may be of interest to the public at large to know that in ten years the receipts of the local office have increased 135 per cent, which of course is caused by the steady growth of our city. I am convinced that under the able management of President P. M. Sanford and the splendid board of directors that we shall witness the best year in our history as a city.

Greta Garbo, beautiful Swedish actress, makes the American howl in the Ibanez story and Monta Bell who directed, Miss Garbo, and others of the cast were all notified among the big crowd of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stars and players who crowded the theatre. Miss Garbo looks every inch the operatic Prima Donna, even if she doesn't always personify the peasant girl type so well, and luckily for the by-standers she looks the grand manner to perfection in her off state moments.

As Menjou, Richardo Cortez and Gertrude Olmstead are all if New York of enroute there, they were absent from the various openings.

Probably the most stupendous number of stars were in the audience at that new neighborhood house "The Figueroa." Here John Barrymore's film "The Sea Beast" held sway, and both the advance reports on the film, and Barrymore's own popularity with the colony gave this precedence among the notables of filmdom.
